Malaya forcing refugees to move on

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysian authorities, who say they plan to force all 76,000 Vietnamese refugees in Malaysia back out to sea, loaded about 500 onto a boat Sunday and towed it into the South China Sea, witnesses reported.

There was no official confirmation of the report and no word from the government on whether it signalled the start of the mass-expulsion program.

Other unconfirmed reports said as many as 2,500 Vietnamese refugees may have been towed out to sea Sunday.

Thailand, meanwhile, continued its own program of forced repatriations, sending 2,500 more Cambodian refugees back to their war-torn homeland. The Thais have expelled close to 50,000 Cambodians in the last two weeks.

Since February, authorities in Malaysia have been turning away many Vietnamese "boat people" and allowing others to come ashore only briefly to repair their boats before setting out again.

It was unclear whether those reported expelled Sunday were such "temporary" arrivals, but it was the first such expulsion reported since Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad announced Friday that Malaysia would put the 76,000 Vietnamese refugees currently sheltered in the Southeast Asian country into boats and take them back out to sea.

Mahathir said at the same time that orders would be given to "shoot on sight" any refugees trying to land on Malaysian shores.

Native jobs said the ones that go

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 500 Indian, Metis and Inuit will lose their jobs during the next three years because of federal government civil service cuts that more natives will get senior jobs, says Theresa Nahape, chairman of the Native Employees Action Team.

Ms. Nahape said in a statement that Indian Affairs Minister Jake Epp told her he has the backing of

Mayor Dave Maroney and Anne Luedy at signing of Hire-a-student week proclamation which begins today

IWA votes for strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Woodworkers in British Columbia's coastal and southern interior regions have voted 88 per cent in favor of strike action should contract talks fail.

But the vote, results of which were released Saturday, is a routine event and talks have been continuing in what spokesmen for the companies and the union say is a positive atmosphere.

Jack Munro, Western region president of the International Woodworkers of America, said Saturday he is hopeful a settlement can be reached without a strike.

Watching the talks closely are representatives of two pulp and paper unions and their 12,800 members and 15 B.C. paper companies. Generally, the pulp and paper negotiations parallel those in the logging industry and the base pay rate of $8.16 is the same in both industries.

The pulp and paper unions, the Canadian Paperworkers' Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, have not yet taken strike votes.

Should the woodworkers' talks fail and there is a strike, pulp and paper producers would also be severely affected by the walkout.

The woodworkers' talks are continuing, however, and Munro said the two sides are wrestling with the pension issue.

Forest Industrial Relations, the group which negotiates for the companies, wants a pension plan that would cover all three forest industry unions.

Munro said the woodworkers are not opposed to one plan but want first to ensure that problems with the woodworkers' present plan are corrected.

In negotiations, the companies have offered the woodworkers pay raises of 60 cents in the first year of a two-year contract dating back to last Friday, with a six-per-cent raise in the second year.

SUMMIT TALKS

Soviets say no to arms changes

VIENNA (AP) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev told U.S. President Carter — and indirectly the U.S. Senate — Sunday night that any changes in a new strategic arms limitations treaty might have "grave and even dangerous consequences" for East-West relations and the world.

Carter matched the Soviet hard line in a responding dinner toast, serving notice that in areas of confrontation around the world "the United States can and will protect its vital interests."

The stiff exchange, on the eve of their meeting-ending signing of SALT II, appeared to indicate a lack of progress in discussion of a number of world trouble spots.

A U.S. official, who declined to be identified, said there were "very frank expressions of differences" between the two sides.

Despite the stern rhetoric, Carter and Brezhnev agreed at two business meetings during the day to press forward toward further arms control measures in the 1980s. And the military chiefs of the two countries opened separate, direct consultations for the first time since the Second World War.

Carter's proposals for SALT III include trimming the size of missile launchers, blocking new technology, and tightening monitoring measures to guard against cheating. U.S. officials expected a detailed Soviet response only later but one said Brezhnev appeared receptive.

With the start of negotiations on SALT III held in abeyance pending a vote by the U.S. Senate on ratifying SALT II, Brezhnev clearly was addressing senators more than Carter when, in his toast, he said: "Of course, it (SALT II) is a compromise, for it could not be otherwise. Each side would like some parts of the text of the treaty to be somewhat different, more suitable to it, but each side has had to yield something ..."

"Any attempt to rock this elaborate structure ... to substitute any of its elements, to pull it closer to one's own self would be an unprofitable exercise."

In such an event, Brezhnev said, "the entire structure might then collapse, entailing grave and even dangerous consequences for our relations and for the situation in the world as a whole."

Carter's toast was aimed more directly at Brezhnev. "Let us discourage the use of foreign troops in troubled regions of the world and encourage the peaceful settlement of disputes among the people who are directly involved," Carter said.

Carter said he and Brezhnev agreed on the need for further efforts to control and regulate nuclear weapons and urged that the Soviet-U.S. detente reached in Europe encompass other trouble spots.

Carter's remarks came after two meetings with Brezhnev at the Soviet Embassy during which Carter outlined his proposals for further cuts in U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals.

TEACHER ASSAULTED

Special education teacher James Ashton suffered a broken nose in an assault allegedly by two students at Mount Elizabeth Senior Secondary Thursday.

School board officials and teachers at Mount Elizabeth have refused to comment on the matter but the board of trustees released a statement Friday saying "violence is not and will not be condoned in Kitimat schools."

Chairman Bev Rodrigo said the board has requested that the police conduct a complete investigation of the incident which occurred at the school June 14 and press criminal charges if they are warranted.

Staff Sergeant Hank Dedish of Kitimat RCMP said today that no formal charges have been laid but police are looking into charges of assault causing bodily harm.

The two students involved in the incident are juveniles.

CNCP, Bell do battle

ST. ANDREWS-BY-THE-SEA, N.B. (CP) — Bell Canada Ltd. and CNCP Telecommunications moved their battle over monopolies and competition to the federal cabinet level during the weekend, even as the chairman of Bell Canada's American parent company was telling telecommunicators here that the age of telephone-company monopolies is ending.

CNCP and Bell Canada are fighting over whether CNCP should have the right to use telephone-company lines to carry three types of long-distance voice transmissions. CNCP, owned jointly by Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Ltd., operates the Canadian Tels network and other telecommunications services.

Two escape

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — RCMP are seeking two prisoners who escaped Saturday afternoon from the Prince George Regional Correctional Centre.

The pair, who fled into nearby bush from the prison's exercise yard, are Wayne Baker, 20, and Ronald George Cromble, 19.

WHO IS BACON HEAD?

Vandals hit Kitimat school

Vandals spray-painted the back of Mount Elizabeth Senior Secondary Thursday evening. Marilyn Cook, vice-principal in charge of facilities at the school, said Friday that cost of repainting the exterior wall opposite the tennis courts can't be estimated until work is completed.

Graffiti in red, black and silver spray paint referred to someone named Smith as a "bacon head."

There are, however, four teachers named Smith on the staff so there is no way of knowing which one inspired the messages.

The shelter at Hirsch Creek Park was also spray painted over night Thursday.

Municipal engineer Kip Gaudry said Friday public works has estimated the cost of the damage at $300.

Kitimat RCMP, who discovered the vandalism at both park and school, do not believe the 1979 graduating students are responsible.

Corporal Rick Lewis said that at graduation time vandalism tends to increase because the culprits believe students will be blamed for the damage.

U.S. anti-nuclear plan outlined

VIENNA (AP) — U.S. President Carter outlined his proposals for cutting nuclear arsenals in the 1980s to Soviet President Brezhnev on Sunday while the military chiefs of the two superpowers opened direct consultations for the first time since the Second World War.

"I think he sees in it a greater probability of peace and stability," a senior U.S. official said of Brezhnev's reaction to Carter's arms control proposals. The official, who declined to be identified, said one result could be reductions in some weapons systems beyond those constrained by the new strategic arms limitation treaty — SALT II — to be signed today. The separate military talks brought U.S. Defence Secretary Harold Brown and Gen. David Jones, the chief of U.S. military staff, together with Soviet Defence Minister Dmitri Ustinov and Nikolai Ogarkov, the top Soviet military officer.

The meeting, which had no fixed agenda, could foreshadow sub-summit consultations between the two superpowers.

"One hope is that we can expand the range of depth of U.S.-Soviet contacts," reports were told.

Arms control, including items that might be included in the next U.S.-Soviet nuclear weapons treaty, dominated the third Carter-Brezhnev meeting, held at the Soviet embassy.

A participant described it as "a very lively discussion" in which Carter and Brezhnev underscored the danger of nuclear miscalculation.

U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser, joined Carter in outlining American positions. On the Soviet side, the 72-year-old Brezhnev had Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Ustinov present Soviet views.

U.S. officials said Brezhnev, who had been ailing recently, "is doing very well." He was described as "a man in his 70s making a valiant effort to represent his country."

A few minutes after Sunday's morning session, in seeing Carter out the door of the Soviet embassy to a waiting limousine, Brezhnev stumbled and had to be helped down the steps.

Instinctively, Carter grabbed Brezhnev's hand and held it until the wobbly Soviet leader regained his footing without falling. Carter also gave him a reassuring pat on the shoulder.

The two leaders, after a long break for lunch, opened their fourth session, scheduled to last 90 minutes, at the Soviet embassy. They were to attend a working dinner later at the embassy.

Before beginning the second day of talks, Carter, his wife, Rosalynn, and daughter, Amy, attended a stirring Roman Catholic mass in the 800-year-old Gothic chapel of the old imperial Hofburg Palace.

The famed Vienna Boys Choir, from a loft above the congregation, sang a Mozart mass, their soprano "amen" accompanied by trumpet fanfares from an orchestra. "It was just beautiful," the Baptist president said. "The service was dedicated to peace, which I appreciated."

Choir boys in their traditional blue sailor suits gave the presidential family a special brief outdoor concert afterward.

Whales dash trans-Atlantic trip

HALIFAX (CP) — His hopes to sail the Atlantic in a rubber dingy shattered by a frisky pod of whales, Paul Parsons has reluctantly settled for a fishing trip off the Nova Scotia coast.

The bearded Briton was plucked out of the damaged and swamping dinghy Puffa by the National Sea Products Ltd. stern trawler Cape Pictou about 2 a.m. ADT Sunday.

He was signed on as a temporary deckhand aboard the 60-ton Cape Pictou which is not scheduled to return to her home port of Lunenburg, N.S., until June 26 or 27.

Parsons, 30, who left

Halifax early Friday, said in a ship-to-shore telephone conversation he was about 45 nautical miles out and moving southeast at about 4 p.m. Saturday when things began to happen.

"A couple of fins appeared off the starboard bow. Then I got a few more off the port. I counted about 11 pilot whales either side of me and it looked as if they were in a rutting pod headed down from the North."

He said he was too busy steering to notice if there were any whales behind him. Suddenly, the dinghy was hit in the stern and he fell forward. A lifeline to which he was attached prevented him from falling overboard. He noticed that the steering equipment was "lying in the boat and the rudder was missing. It was smashed and ripped out."

He said he stood up and the Puffa was hit again — under the bow this time.

"There was a lot of cracking of wood under the floorboards. I started to ship a lot of water."

He put out a distress signal then and it was picked up by the Cape Pictou, which was beginning a 10-day fishing trip. The fishing vessel picked him up about nine hours later in "quite a heavy sea with the wind blowing about 25 knots."

Parsons said he was pumping out water at the rate of about 30 gallons a minute before his rescuer arrived.

"She was shipping water over the bow and somewhere through the floor. I was very wet and pretty scared but I kept in contact about every quarter hour with the skipper of the Cape Pictou. He knew exactly where I was."

The Cape Pictou also retrieved the dinghy. Despite the experience, Parsons said he might try again next year.

He was towed out to the Halifax harbor entrance early Friday by a salvage tug. He planned to move in the southerly direction until he met the Gulf Stream and then set a course northeast for England.

On a leave of absence from his job, he had hoped to complete the trip in 60 days and carried provisions for 80.

Chinese planning for new election

PEKING (AP) — China announced Sunday its parliament will act on measures to give the Chinese people free, direct elections by secret ballot on the county level, greater independence for the judiciary and added protection for persons accused of crimes.

Bills providing for these changes are on the agenda for the two-week session of the parliament, the Fifth National People's Congress, which begins today. The agenda was adopted Sunday by a preparatory committee and the measures are sure to be passed.

The timing of the election measures was not announced and some delegates to the Congress have several more years in their terms. The other measures would take effect immediately.

The government said the reforms would include allowing more candidates than there are seats in the county people's congresses, and allowing non-Communists to run for those legislatures and for indirectly-elected congresses at higher levels.

Until now, candidates were selected by Communist party committees, in many cases only one for a seat. Sometimes members were appointed rather than elected.

The People's Congress will also tackle the problem of readjusting the economy, now that China's 21-year national modernization drive has slowed. The agenda includes a bill providing for joint Chinese and foreign enterprises and investments.

Chi Peng-fai, a vice-chairman of the parliament's standing committee, told reporters of the new measures in a news conference Sunday.

The agenda includes a series of bills to create judicial organs to deal with civil and criminal cases. Among other measures, the new laws would allow defendants the rights to be represented by a lawyer and to have the aid of family, friends and organizations.

The People's Congress, under China's 1978 constitution, can amend the constitution, elect and remove state officials and decide on the national economic plan. It meets once a year and elects a standing committee of about 140 members that supervises the Commission for State Affairs, the executive organ of the People's Congress.

Although the 1978 constitution does not place the People's Congress under Communist party direction, real power in China has been held by the party. There are eight other parties, all members of the United Front headed by Deng Xiaoping (Tung Hsiao-ping), who is also a vice-premier in the Commission for State Affairs.

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (CP) — Residents of Chilliwack municipality and the township of Chilliwack in the upper Fraser Valley have voted 69.1 per cent in favor of amalgamation. As a result of the vote, effective Jan. 2, 1980, the city and township will combine to become the district of Chilliwack and will be represented by one mayor and eight council members. The measure needed a simple majority in both the city and the township in order to pass. City residents voted 1,070 to 188 for amalgamation while the township vote was 3,254 to 2,012 in favor. The combined voter turnout was about 30 per cent.

Missionaries escape safely

TORONTO (CP) — Two Canadian missionaries escaped safely from war-torn Nicaragua on Saturday after rebel forces advanced to within seven kilometres of their mission near Managua. Robert Whittier said in a telephone interview from his Paris, Ont., home that he received a call from his daughter, Sharan Brian, 26, and her husband, Ken, 32, after they landed in Miami along with 26 other people, five of them Canadians. He said his daughter told him the mission had been without water and electricity and that food was running short. She said Canadian embassy officials in Nicaragua had been urging them to leave for some time.

Bob's recognition hopeless

PEKING (AP) — Bob Hope received blank looks Sunday as he strolled around Peking carrying a golf club. He is unknown because his movies have not played in China. But that should change because he plans to do a Chinese television special before leaving. "I've got one of the most recognized faces in the world and it's very strange to walk along and get blank looks," said Hope. "They are more interested in my golf club." He was spending his first full day in Peking, visiting locations for a 90-minute television special, The Road to China. The 76-year-old comedian toured the Tian An Men Square, Democracy Wall, the forbidden city and the summer palace.

West Bank demonstrations recent Jewish settlement in the West Bank of the Jordan River, which Israel has occupied since the 1967 Mideast War. Started two weeks ago, Elon Moreh has heightened anti-Israeli feeling in Nabulus, the largest town in the West Bank.

In Tel Aviv on Saturday night, about 12,000 Israelis demonstrated against their government's decision to go ahead with the Jewish village.

Injuries were reported by each side. The demonstration was called to protest the establishment near Nabulus of Elon Moreh, the most

Newspapers strike out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial mediator Peter Dowding came up empty handed Sunday in his efforts to end the 7½-month strike-out at Pacific Press Ltd. that has shut down Vancouver's two daily newspapers.

the recent tentative contract settlement. The Printing Pressmen's Union, Wholesale Drivers Union and the International Typographical Union last week voted against the contract which would have provided a 35-per cent wage increase over 40 months for the 1,400 workers at Pacific Press, which produces the morning Province and the evening Sun.

Dowding said there were no tangible results after a three-hour meeting with the three unions of the six-union joint council which rejected there were no injuries.

Mary Leonard, chief of the Kamloops band, was called to the scene after two and one-half hours of unsuccessful negotiations, police said.

Leonard spoke with the men in the trailer for a few minutes and the men emerged from the dwelling a short time later.

Pipeline leak fixed

ANCHORAGE (AP) — A leak in a cracked pipe along the trans-Alaska pipeline has been sealed and oil is flowing through the 1,200-kilometre system, an Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. spokesman said Sunday.

John Ratterman said rubber material and a steel pad were bound to the crack with steel straps, sealing the leak Saturday night.

Plans called for work crews to weld a two-piece split sleeve over the break today, Ratterman said. The flow of oil will not need to be halted while the sleeve is welded on, he said.

It was the second leak in less than a week and officials say the pipeline is "wrinkled" at each site. The cause of the wrinkles remains unknown.

Ratterman said it will be several days before crews finish mopping up the residual oil. And, since "the oil was immediately contained at the site," Ratterman said the only environmental damage was to vegetation in the immediate area of the spill.

About 300 barrels of oil had sprayed from the hairline crack since Friday when it was discovered by an Alyeska surveillance plane 184 kilometres north of the port of Valdez.

The $7.7-billion pipeline closed earlier this month after a major leak was discovered by a bush pilot June 10 at the Atigun Pass in the Brooks Range, 288 kilometres south of Prudhoe Bay.

Dominican rampage

ROSEAU (Reuter) — Demonstrators rampaged through the streets of Dominica's capital Sunday, looting shops owned by government supporters as part of a growing campaign to oust Prime Minister Patrick John.

The demonstrators, chanting "We Are Hungry," ripped off protective gates to get into the shops. Violence and looting Saturday night left a trail of smashed windows in shopping streets.

As the political crisis grew, however, there was no sign that John, who led the Caribbean island to independence from Britain last November, intended to step down.

His hold on power, however, continued to weaken with the resignation of a fifth government minister and three senators.

Opponents accuse John of corruption and of seeking to overthrow the government of nearby Barbados with the help of South Africa.

NEIGHBORHOOD WATCH

Home security program here again

by Linda Purschke

According to Brock Elliott project leader, this year's Neighbourhood Watch Home Security Program will once again give Terrace residents a chance to both meet neighbours and improve home security at the same time.

"The program, which will be starting this week, has three main components," said Elliott. "First, we want to use the program to help encourage residents to communicate better with the RCMP, and to get to know their neighbours so that if and when they spot suspicious activity they will call the RCMP."

"Second, we will be providing electric engraving pencils for permanently marking valuables with the resident's Social Insurance Number, and recording valuables with the RCMP," Elliott continued.

"Third, we will be providing stickers that will indicate to a potential thief the household has participated in the program," said Elliott. "Few thieves steal for their own use, they fence the goods and if the valuables can be easily identified this acts as a deterrent."

Elliott said that the program will be door-to-door and said he and four other students will canvass the Terrace area. Elliott stated that the students would be equipped with engraving pencils for identification of valuables that they will lend to residents. When canvassing the students will also inform neighbours about the time and place of meetings that would be in their area. Elliott explained that at the area meetings, an RCMP officer would be in attendance to describe the program in detail and to show a film to residents. Elliott said the officer would be able to give information and suggestions to residents in response to particular home or personal security questions that they might have.

Elliott added that residents who attended meetings or who were canvassed last year should come out again this year.

"Coming to the meetings again will give people a chance to meet their new neighbours and give them the opportunity to offer suggestions. When they are canvassed by the students, they will also have the opportunity to update marking of their valuables with the engraving pen."

Elliott also explained how the program was encouraging an improvement of home security procedures beyond the three main component by informing residents about the types of locks they may require, or the security procedures to institute while they go on holidays.

"When people go on holidays, they should arrange with neighbours to watch the house, and get the lawn cut. They should also arrange to have delivery of newspapers stopped. A pile of papers at the doorstep is like a neon sign saying the residents are not home," Elliott said.

"People should also phone the RCMP while they're away and the RCMP will regularly check doors and windows to make sure they're locked. Elliott added.

Elliott added that the students would also be working on a program of "business identification" where the group would check to see that the businesses had proper signs identifying themselves at rear entrances. Elliott noted this was particular problem in malls, where an officer on patrol would only see ten doors when looking for the back entrance to a specific store.

"We will be identifying those businesses that RCMP feel should be better identified," explained Elliott. "We will approach the managers and ask for a small donation so that we can make up a proper sign and install it on the premises."

Elliott also stated that the four students who will be working with him on the Neighbourhood Watch program will carry proper RCMP identification while canvassing and said the program will start in the centre of town, and then fan outward, covering as much of the Terrace area as possible, before the program ends in late August.

Elliott said residents not at home when the canvassers call will be left brochures detailing the program and advising them when the area meeting in their neighbourhood will be held, and added that there will be a "catch-all" meeting for those who were out of the area to discuss the program with the RCMP, which will be announced at a later date.

Questioned firm closed

The Saskatchewan-based head office of a company known as Luzzi Investments Ltd. has been closed down, and officials of the provincial Consumer Affairs Department are not sure what they can do about complaints from the company's clients in Prince Rupert and Prince George.

Luzzi Investments is the holding company for two firms which conducted business in the two northern B.C. cities this past winter: "Let's Get Acquainted" and Heritage Studios.

"Let's Get Acquainted" sold 1,000 coupon booklets in Prince Rupert and up to 5,000 booklets in Prince George this past January offering reductions on the merchandise and services of local businessmen. The coupon booklets also offered reduced rates on a family portrait session by Heritage Studios.

In both cities, a number of persons who took advantage of the Heritage Studio offer have complained to Consumer Affairs officials and representatives of the British Columbia Better Business Bureau about delays in receiving the photographs, and early this week it was discovered that the company's office in Saskatchewan had been abandoned.

According to a spokesperson for the Better Business Bureau in Vancouver, Luzzi Enterprises was jointly owned by Saskatchewan residents Don Laskar and Bonnie Kriebel, and the firm's surety company has recently elected to terminate the company's performance bond.

Another couple were involved with the company originally, but reports indicate they have since split off and begun another similar enterprise called "Be Our Guest." None of the company principals could be located for comment.

The Bureau spokesperson also said that the company had not been licensed by the Saskatchewan government this year.

Gerri Dunn of the Saskatchewan Consumer Affairs Department says there is little the department can do about the complaints against the company it was performing out of province. Saskatchewan and

New Brunswick are the only two provinces which do not have Better Business Bureaus.

Meanwhile, officials at the Prince George office of B.C. Consumer Affairs say they are still investigating the situation and advise any persons who have not yet received photographs to contact their office.

Thus far there have been no indications that the company intends to file for bankruptcy. Sam Hobbs, an investigator with the Federal Consumer and Corporate Affairs Department in Vancouver said in an interview today that people who buy from door-to-door merchants or salespeople dealing over the phone are "often the authors of their own downfall."

Hobbs speculated that the Saskatchewan-based company had struck northern B.C. hoping to find residents more gullible than in the south.

"I guess people up there are just more hospitable," he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

Like all writing that contains a small amount of truth and a large amount of error, Mr. Middleton's recent articles are likely to command popular assent, especially in certain sections of the community. I would, therefore, ask you for space in your columns to comment on some aspects of his writing and to correct some of the facts and misconceptions inherent in the first two parts of his survey of public education.

First some facts pertaining to teacher qualifications; about which Mr. Middleton makes much play in his argument that most teachers, being the product of university education facilities, "don't have the education they should" to teach specialist subjects. Whatever validity there may be in this argument, and its cogency is certainly questionable, a survey of the teachers working in Caledonia High School showed that 75 per cent of the staff had graduated from academic facilities and had subsequently taken the education year at university which entitled them to teach. Some had also done postgraduate research in their particular specialist field. Although I have not examined the credentials of all people teaching in this district or indeed the province at large, it is evident that in those schools where specialist knowledge is required (that is the high schools) the large majority is more than adequately qualified. It is perhaps worth adding, however, that the 25 per cent who graduated from education facilities seem to have no less success in their teaching than the rest.

Mr. Middleton's facts, or his presentation of them, are suspect. So indeed are his comments on language skills. The two students he quotes who have come through school without having "written anything" and without having been exposed to grammar may have spent twelve years at school, but they did not succeed in graduating, not at least from the school at which I am teaching. Every teacher in the English department devotes a considerable (too much, in my opinion) proportion of his class time to instruction in conventional grammar and to practice in writing formal essays. Rather than listen to two random students, Mr. Middleton is welcome to come and see for himself.

In spite of the factual inaccuracies and the defective logic in Mr. Middleton's writing, however, the most offensive aspects of his comments are his tone and style. Among the grosser aspects of his style are incomprehensible remarks ("the final examination this year is...I gather at least grade wide, because the teacher didn't give the class formal instruction") clusters of clumsy, asinine sentences ("The example she gave me of the things done in this class was that as one project they did a poster" and crude special pleading ("if you wanted a gut course, a mickey-mouser"). These and many other faults were pointed out to me by some good grade 10 students I have. Less sophisticated members of the class found several mistakes in Mr. Middleton's punctuation.

There are things wrong with the education system, which most teachers are seeking to rectify. In doing so, many at this point in the term are suffering nervous stress and fatigue, and find the task harder by being assailed by the irresponsible kind of journalistic twiddle-twaddle produced by Mr. Middleton.

Yours truly,
Ian Jordan

CONSUMER COMMENT

"Get yours today! Order a set of 25 china mugs not available in stores. Send the coupon below with a cheque or money order for $50.00 to Box 666, Toronto, Ontario."

Are you ever tempted by an offer like this?

Before deciding to order the mugs, here are a few questions you should ask yourself.

First of all, would you normally want to buy a set of twenty-five mugs?

Are you saving any money by ordering the mugs through the mail?

Are you willing to pay return registered postage for incorrect orders and merchandise that you don't want to keep after you've inspected it? Remember that the Post Office doesn't accept parcels unless the postage is paid when it is mailed.

Can you find the same or similar mugs available locally for the same, less or more money, without the risks involved in dealing "long distance"?

Are you willing to accept that there may be delays in delivery even though your cheque or money order will be cashed immediately?

Are you prepared to photocopy the order coupon and keep records of when the order went, when payments were made, when the articles arrived and were returned and copies of any correspondence that you had with the company?

If you answer "no" to four or more of these questions, perhaps you should reconsider your intention to purchase by mail.

If you have ordered products from mail companies and have had difficulties with the order, you can contact the following office to have the problem investigated: The Canadian Direct Mail and Marketing Association, 130 Merton Street, Toronto, Ontario M4S 1A4

PROBLEMS-SOLUTIONS

Copper Mt. parent replies

Dear Sir:

As two of the concerned parents that attended the meeting at Copper Mountain School to discuss the problems being experienced there, we feel we have to take exception to your comments on the event.

You state that because Mr. Hamilton refused to meet with the parents in the presence of the press it indicates his unwillingness to listen to the concerns of parents. It should be pointed out that Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Phillips met with the majority of parents in the staff room, after Mrs. Sandeck refused to allow the press to leave. At that point Mrs. Sandeck indicated her desire was to have her meeting with the press and not with the representatives of the school and school district. We chose to leave because we could see absolutely no point in meeting to discuss school problems, the procedures of dealing with those problems, and possible methods of improving the situation, without having the principal and school district Superintendent present. What could possibly be accomplished?

Every parent there knew what the problems were, and from discussions with other parents throughout the Terrace area the problems are not unique to Copper Mountain School. Theft, smoking, swearing, and disrespect for teachers is as common in every school in Terrace, and probably elsewhere as well. We certainly agree that a return to the strap may be necessary, but there is no point in confronting the school with it, those parents would be better advised to direct their energy to forming a parent lobby to apply pressure to the government to change that policy.

Yes, we are aware of the problems, what to do about them is certainly another matter. School principals have been stripped of their power to exercise authority, thus compounding the problem of dealing with disrespectful students. Respect for, or lack of respect for, adults and peers, is taught to children a long time before they reach school age. It is therefore, a monumental task for teachers to try to cope with once these children enter the school system.

We were sorry to see the confrontation at the school, but disagree as to who was responsible for it. Most of us were there to discuss the problems with a view of helping to solve them. There was no need for the press to be there, having a television camera or a reporter recording every word you say is intimidating to some, and not conducive to an open frank discussion. If Mrs. Sandeck had wanted to discuss the problems with Mr. Phillips and Mr. Hamilton she had every opportunity. The majority of us did have our say. We also took the first step toward a solution by opening an avenue for dialogue between parents and school staff. What did Mrs. Sandeck and her group accomplish with their grandstand play?

Sincerely,
Mrs. R. Clark

DATELINE VICTORIA

by Marcus R. Davies

Wednesday, June 6th marked the beginning of the first session of the thirty-second Parliament of British Columbia, the second parliament to be led by Premier William R. Bennett.

The sitting was opened by Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving's recital of the shortest Throne Speech in the province's history, a two page document which reiterates the main points from the speech of March 22. The only variation from the original was the government's expressed opposition to the development of nuclear power in B.C. "We are fortunate," the new speech states, "that we do not have to consider nuclear power as one of the options necessary to meet our energy requirements."

Highlights carried over from the original include the introduction of the Denticare program, and end to discrimination in ICBC rates, and the installment of a Bill of Rights.

The mood in the buildings on the first day of the new session was more subdued and relaxed than it had been previously. The politicians seemed relieved to have the election out of the way, and can now "get down to the business of the province", as Opposition Leader David Barrett stated.

One got the feeling from observing the government benches that there was more humility than in past. It is apparent that the people in B.C. have indeed taught them a lesson, and with a difference of just four seats between government and opposition that lesson shall not be easily forgotten.

On the opposition's side, of the House, where there is only one party for the first time since 1910, the NDP's quiet confidence was obvious. Not wanting to flex their new muscles too openly, the Loyal Opposition glowed silently at the introduction of their new MLAs. Much valuable talent has joined the NDP caucus since the last parliament, particularly in the persons of Frank Howard and Stu Leggatt, former Ottawa members for that party, and Gordon Hanson, the soft spoken archaeologist who surprised pundits by being elected in Victoria. All of these men will make welcome contributions to a legislature which in past has resembled a country carnival.

The government's benches have also been enhanced by recent additions. The days of the used car dealer are over as the government tries for a more polished presentation. Newcomers expected to assist in that project include Brian Smith of Oak Bay, who defeated Tory leader Vic Stephens, and Peter Hyndman, former president of both the Tory and Social Credit parties. There will certainly be room made for these men in the cabinet.

The first session of this parliament is expected to last just eight to ten weeks, with both sides determined to stick to business. The government has had ample time to formulate the strategy with which they will present themselves, and the opposition has adopted a "wait and see" philosophy. The notion that the sitting would be quiet, however, brought a chuckle and wink from one of the new NDP members. "The sitting of the legislature," he pointed out, "is the opposition's only opportunity to make headlines. We can't be too quiet."

It is not expected that the NDP will oppose the Denticare program, or alterations in the ICBC rate structure, however there will likely be controversy over departmental estimates when the budget is brought down. In the past this has proven to be the most effective weapon for the opposition, who especially delight in debating the premier's estimates. If there are any moments of colour in this first session, they will likely come during that debate.

This sitting will also coincide with the distribution of shares in the B.C. Resource Investment Corporation. The NDP is waiting to see if the scheme is successful, hoping to jump with both feet on any flaws in the program. Fodder for many exciting question periods could be found.

When looking at the new House, and new members, British Columbians, regardless of political persuasion, should be pleased with what they see. On May 10th, the people elected the most responsible, most accountable legislature to sit in this province for more than twenty years. Both parties understand how close they are to being on the other side of the Floor. Should they not lose sight of this fact, the real winners will be the people of B.C.

Parting notes: NDP Leader Dave Barrett, contrary to rumour, is in no danger of losing his job. Members of that party seem to want to give Dave one more chance. Any challenge that does happen will come at the NDP's annual convention on the Labour Day weekend.

New NDP MLA Stu Leggatt was openly pleased with his change of jobs from Ottawa to Victoria. "This way," the future NDP leader stated, "I don't have to fly DC-10s across the country."

IT'S THEIR 10th

Nfld. voters go to polls

By ED WALTERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundlanders go to the polls today in their 10th provincial general election since Confederation. The vote comes after six months of political developments.

The 323,000 eligible voters have a choice of three parties with a record 163 candidates in the running. Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. NDT (6:30 EDT). Premier Brian Peckford, who won his office with a March 17 victory at a Progressive Conservative leadership convention, says he is seeking a fresh mandate for a five-year development period with no tax increases.

Don Jamieson has appealed to voters to elect his Liberals on the basis of his wide experience as a federal cabinet minister. With the exception of a three-year freeze on domestic electricity rates and free drugs for the elderly and chronically ill, Jamieson made no promises except that of good government.

John Greene of the New Democratic Party says he is offering a new style of government that will take the province out of the tired doldrums of the PCs and Liberals.

The PCs and Liberals have candidates in each of the 52 districts. The NDP has candidates in 51, having failed to nominate a candidate in Torngat Mountains, a northern Labrador coastal district created by legislation earlier this year.

In the last house there were 51 seats, with 30 held by the PCs and 21 by Liberals. Some districts, such as St. John's Centre, have as many as five candidates, one for each of the parties and various kinds of independents.

The Liberal Reform Party, which won four seats in the last election in 1975, no longer exists. The party was created by former premier Joseph R. Smallwood who had failed in an earlier attempt to regain the Liberal leadership he relinquished by resigning his government in 1972.

Smallwood and three others won seats on the Liberal Reform ticket in 1975. The former premier quit politics in 1976 and the other three Liberal reformers later moved back into the official Liberal fold.

Smallwood, 78, is not a candidate but was campaigning on behalf of his son Bill who is the Liberal in Port De Grave.

Peckford, 36, a former school teacher, was mines and energy minister when Frank Moores announced Jan. 19 that he would resign as premier and from politics.

The PC leadership convention was preceded by heavy campaigning as nine candidates sought the post. The new premier was originally expected to call a fast election after the leadership race but he held off. Peckford said at the time he wanted to put his personal stamp on the government before going to the people.

The premier said May 25 when he called the election that the outcome of the May 22 federal election gave him a strong reason to seek a new mandate. He said he wanted to feel he had the authority to negotiate on Newfoundland's behalf with Prime Minister Clark's new PC federal government.

On that same day some local Liberals, who were preparing for their leadership convention July 6-7, had started a draft-Jamieson movement.

Jamieson, 58, lost his external affairs portfolio with the federal Liberal defeat and there had been speculation he would try for the Newfoundland leadership.

William N. Rowe, elected Liberal leader two years ago, was in trouble with some party members for his handling of the leaking of confidential police investigation reports to the news media.

Rowe announced May 27 he was stepping down and the party executive appointed Jamieson as leader. Rowe is offering again in Twillingate district.

Jamieson, well-known in Newfoundland as a broadcaster before he entered politics, was first elected to Parliament in a 1966 byelection in Burin-Burgeo and stayed there until this year.

Greene, 39, a teacher, is pinning his hopes mainly on the 31.4 per cent of the popular vote the NDP picked up in the federal election and hopes the same strength will show up in seats in today's vote.

The NDP has never elected a candidate in Newfoundland provincial elections. Federally, Fouse Faur won Humber-Port au Port-St. Barbe in a byelection last year and held it in the May 22 election.

Expos blast Houston 19-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal Expos patted six Houston pitchers for 24 hits and five home runs Sunday and breezed home with a 19-3 victory in the battle of National League baseball divisional leaders.

Five of those Montreal hits were home runs, two by veteran Tony Perez, who drove in four runs to pace the East Division frontrunners. The Expos pulled ahead 2-0 in the first inning, then broke loose for six runs in both the third and fourth innings to take a 14-1 lead.

The highlight of the Montreal fourth was consecutive home runs by Perez, Gary Carter and Ellis Valentine. Larry Parrish had the other home run for Montreal, while Art Howe hit a solo shot for the Astros, leaders of the West Division.

Houston starter Joe Niekro, 10-3, took the loss which ended his nine-game winning streak. Dan Schatzeder, 2-1, combined with relievers David Palmer and Rudy May to hold the Astros to eight hits.

Elsewhere Sunday, New York Mets and Atlanta Braves were tied 1-1 when their contest — delayed a total of two hours by rain — was suspended by a travel curfew. Philadelphia Phillies downed Cincinnati Reds 9-3 with a six-run eighth, Chicago Cubs beat San Diego Padres 8-5, Pittsburgh Pirates stifled Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 and San Francisco Giants topped St. Louis Cardinals 7-4.

On Saturday, San Francisco beat St. Louis 6-1, New York blanked Atlanta 2-0, Montreal downed Houston 4-2, Philadelphia edged Cincinnati 4-3, Pittsburgh whipped Los Angeles 6-3 and Chicago dumped San Diego 5-2.

Prior to the Mets-Braves game, the teams had agreed not to begin an inning after 6 p.m. EDT, so New York could make plane connections to begin a road trip in Houston. The contest will be resumed in the top of the ninth inning Aug. 27. Gary Matthews's fifth-inning homer tied the game for the Braves after John Stearns' bunt single delivered the Mets' run in the fourth.

Bob Boone's two-run double was the highlight of the eighth inning Philadelphia burst which snapped a 3-3 tie. Cincinnati had tied it in the seventh on Ray Knight's second homer of the season.

Dave Kingman drove in two runs with his league-leading 23rd homer and pitcher Mike Krukow added a two-run double as the Cubs rode a six-run first inning to their fifth consecutive victory.

Ed Whitson and Kent Tekulve combined on a two-hitter and Tim Lincecum drove in three runs to carry Pittsburgh past Los Angeles. Bill Madlock snapped a 4-4 tie with an RBI single in the eighth and Willie McCovey added a two-run single to lift San Francisco over St. Louis.

In the American League on Sunday, Detroit Tigers beat California Angels 8-4 to give manager Sparky Anderson his first victory with the team. Toronto Blue Jays outlasted Oakland A's 10-9, Seattle Mariners edged Cleveland Indians 6-5, Chicago White Sox bested Boston Red Sox 6-1, Baltimore Orioles downed Minnesota Twins 8-5 and Milwaukee Brewers got past Kansas City Royals 5-3.

Saturday action saw California beat Detroit 4-2, Milwaukee edge Kansas City 3-2, Toronto shade Oakland 3-2, Cleveland down Seattle 4-3, Boston blast Chicago 11-5 and New York defeated Texas 3-2.

Whitecaps take NY 4-1

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Whitecaps put their famed crossing game to work in near-perfect fashion Saturday night as they methodically trounced New York 4-1 in a North American Soccer League game in which the score flattered the Cosmos.

The Whitecaps used numerous crosses off the wings by Willie Johnston and Carl Valentine to humiliate the poorly-prepared Cosmos for the second time in three years before a sellout crowd of more than 32,500 at Empire Stadium.

Vancouver dominated the game from the start — just as they did in 1977 when the Whitecaps took a 4-0 lead and eventually won 5-3 — and had a three-goal lead by the half through aggressive play on defence and playbooks passing on attack.

"We were aggressive tonight and we took the play to them," said coach Tony Walters of the Whitecaps.

"We went right at them with our power game and they didn't have the answers." Kevin Hector, with his 12th of the season, Jon Samuels, Valentine and Derek Possee scored for the Whitecaps, 10-5, who broke a two-game losing streak with their highest scoring spree of the season.

Irwin takes it second time

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Hale Irwin fought his way to a front-running, four-over-par 75 Sunday in the final round of the first round of the second United States Open golf championship.

Despite a shaky finish, Irwin, 34, who previously won the title in 1974, captured the tournament by two shots with a 72-hole total of 284, matching par on the windswept Inverness Club course.

Although the windy conditions, the demands of the course, the narrow fairways and the undulating greens demanded all of Irwin's concentration and skill, his task was made easier by the collapse of most of his challengers.

Irwin, who hadn't won in the United States since 1977, started the final round with a three-shot advantage over Tom Weiskopf.

But Weiskopf backed off with bogeys on his first two holes. Then came Tom Purtzer, reeling off birdies on three of the first four holes, the last on a putt of about 50 feet. Those holes in muggy weather under threatening skies lifted him to within two strokes of the lead.

But Purtzer self-destructed. He bogeyed three holes in a row then tried to take the short-cut around the tree and down the 17th fairway as a chancey avenue to the eighth green. He got into trouble and eventually finished the par-five hole with a double bogey that took him out of title contention.

That enabled Irwin to make the turn with a six-shot lead.

He appeared in command most of the way, taking a birdie when the opportunity arose, settling for the bogey when he had to, and handling the front-running position with authority and poise.

But, with a five-shot lead, it all came apart on the last two holes.

Irwin drove behind a tree in the rough on the 17th, put his second in a trap, exploded across the green, chipped back and missed his first putt. It was a double bogey.

On the 18th, with South African Gary Player and Jerry Pate already in the clubhouse at 286, Irwin needed only another double bogey to win it outright.

He made bogey instead, driving into the rough and hitting a bunker.

It was the 11th American victory of Irwin's career, which began in 1968. He collected $50,000 from the total purse of about $250,000.

Pate, a former Open champion, and Player tied for second. Pate shot 73 despite two double bogeys. Player closed with a 68 but, having started the play nine shots back, had little chance of overhauling the leader.

Japanese runner wins Manitoba marathon

WINNIPEG (CP) — Wataru Sakamoto of Japan won the first running of the Manitoba Marathon on Sunday.

Sakamoto finished the race in two hours 17 minutes and 31.9 seconds, about 37 seconds ahead of Katsumi Takashima, also of Japan. Goran Hogberg of Sweden was third in 2:18:30.1, John Stanley of Australia was fourth and Dick Boardley of Minnesota fifth.

Richard Bourrier of Winnipeg was the first Canadian to cross the finish line at Winnipeg Stadium, placing 10th in 2:30:44.

Lee Wilcox of Wisconsin was the first finisher in the Master category — 40 years of age or over. He ran the 42-kilometre course in 2:38:27 and was 19th overall.

A bouquet of spring flowers greeted Gail Volk of Seattle, the top woman in the race with a time of 2:48:41. Laurie McBride of New York City was close behind in 2:47.

Wheelchair athlete John Lundie of Winnipeg finished 11th overall, in 3:26:04.1. Lundie had the best time through 25 kilometres but had slipped to 10th a few kilometres later.

The wheelchair participants started several minutes ahead of the other 5,000 racers but were given no time handicap.

Sakamoto was given a standing ovation by a crowd of 2,000 as he turned into the stadium. The Japanese runner collapsed momentarily over a railing after he crossed the finish line but recovered quickly and walked back up the track smiling to greet his countryman Takashima.

Through interpreter Harold Hirose of Winnipeg, the two said they found the race difficult because they are not used to running on a flat course.

Most runners in the top 30 finished well behind their best marathon times. Many said that warmer-than-ideal weather and the hard concrete

ONE UNDER WINS LADIES

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Jane Blalock fashioned a one-under-par 73 Sunday to run away with her fourth 1979 Ladies Professional Golf Association title by six strokes over four-year-old Alice Ritzman.

Blalock cruised to a 73-hole total of 280 with her fourth consecutive sub-par effort to pick up $15,000 as winner's share of the $100,000 event.

For Ritzman, 27, the second-place money of $9,600 more than doubled her earnings this year. The second-year pro had never finished higher than sixth.

Vicki Fergon, who gave Blalock her greatest challenge before fading on the 6,300-yard course, wound up alone in third with a four-day total of 288.

The 23-year-old Fergon nearly equalled her earnings with the $7,000 third prize. She had won $9,623 this year with her best finish a tie for 16th, although she tied for third in a 1977 tournament during her first year on the tour.

Ritzman shot 73 and Fergon 74 while playing the final round with Blalock.

Jerilyn Britz, Dot Germain and Sandra Post tied for fourth at 289. Pat Meyers claimed seventh with 290 and Sally Little eighth with 291.

All of them took a run at Blalock on the front nine, with Meyers starting off with an eagle-3 on the first hole. However, Meyers erased herself from contention with a double bogey-5 on the seventh hole, a bogey-6 on the 10th and a double bogey-5 on the 403-yard 13th, a hole which has proven disastrous for many performers during the tournament.

Little suffered a similar fate after rolling in three birdies on the first four holes to go 7-under.

The South African transplant blew up on the next three holes with bogey, double bogey and bogey to finish the front nine 1-over-37 and out of the running.

Post, a former resident of Oakville, Ont., survived a double bogey on No. 13 and came back with the best round of the day, a 4-under-par 69.

Anderson wins Ontario open

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Jerry Anderson of Toronto won the Ontario Open golf championship Sunday, shooting his third consecutive sub-par round to take the $15,000 tournament by three strokes over Bob Beauchemin of Victoria.

Anderson three-putted only once in the 54-hole event and kept the ball in play with precise work off the tees.

The 23-year-old native of Montreal said his rounds of 68, 69 and 68 for 205 on the par-70, 6,321-yard course were the best of his career.

Anderson turned professional 18 months ago and plays out of the Cedar Brae course in Toronto.

He took home the winners' purse of $3,000 and earned an exemption into this week's Canadian Open at Glen Abbey in Oakville, Ont.

The two other exemptions went to Beauchemin, who finished at two-under-par 208, and Mike Daly of Montreal who added a final-round 68 to his previous rounds of 73 and 69 for 209.

The top amateurs, tied at one-under-par 209, were dentist Pierre Archambault and Graham Cooke, both of Montreal.

Archambault's closing 67 tied him with veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., for best round of the day, while Cooke shot an even-par 70.

It was Anderson's first victory in a major tournament.

"I always knew my time would come," he said.

Weslock, a veteran amateur and seven-time winner of the Ontario Open, opened the tournament with a 75 Friday. He shot 72 Saturday and 67 in the final round for 214, nine strokes behind Anderson.

"This is gratification that my game is still there," Weslock said.

He said "plain carelessness" on two greens cost him a possible round of 68.

First-round leader Roger Dagnall, a club professional from Manotick, Ont., soared to a final-round 77 when the putter that carried him to a round of 66 Friday went cold. He finished at five-over-par 211, tying him with four others in 13th place.

DEAR ABBY

No Odd Couple; Both Are Slobs

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our son and his wife are both 30. He's an assistant professor and she's a social worker. They've been married for a year and lived together for two years before that. They're coming to visit us for two weeks this summer and I am not looking forward to it.

I love them both, but two bigger slobs I've never met! Thank God they found each other.

They were here last Christmas and my lovely home looked like a pigpen during their entire stay. They threw their clothes around, left wet towels on the bathroom floor, ate all over the house and smoked pot in their bedroom. I was exhausted picking up after them. I finally blew my stack just before they left. They apologized and we parted friends.

After they left, my husband told me that if I can't keep my trap shut (his words) and treat our children like guests, we should put them up at a nearby motel when they visit.

Abby, do you think I was out of line for telling those kids off? And how about laying down some ground rules before their next visit? I know I won't be able to keep my trap shut if those slobs don't clean up their act.

HAD IT IN GA.

DEAR HAD IT: Lay down some ground rules. If they break the rules, and you can't keep your trap shut (his words), put the slobs up at a motel.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the wife asking how to get her attorney husband to update his will hit home with me. Here's how I got my father to update his 30-year-old will. He had left everything to my mother who has been dead for 15 years!

I sent my father a copy of my will, asking for his suggestions on how to dispose of whatever he was leaving to me since I had no children. He got the message and promptly updated his will. I may have been left out of his will for all I know, but at least it made him update his own.

G.A.G. IN L.A.

DEAR G.A.G.: Thanks for a good suggestion. Read on for another.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who is an attorney, kept putting off updating his will. My nagging did no good. Finally, I got disgusted and made an appointment with one of the most prominent and expensive estate lawyers in town. Then I casually told my husband about it. That did it.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: E equals G

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.
